

Get Your Children Interested In Newspapers

How do you help parents get a child interested in looking at a newspaper? Keep in mind that it's a kid's job to have fun.

Here are a few ideas to share with the readers of our paper.

- Select a news story or a comic strip and cut the panels or paragraphs apart. Help your child arrange the panels or paragraphs in logical order.
- Read a brief editorial or column together. Have the child underline facts with a blue pen and opinions with a red pen.
- Have your child choose a headline and turn it into a question. Have the child read the article to see if it answers the question.
